NDCC Program Featured at Keyholder

Recognizing the need that many individuals have to return to the workforce after "retiring," New Directions Career Center started a new program in late 2009. The 56-hour course focuses on helping "seasoned workers" develop the computer literacy and communication skills that often serve as barriers to their return to employment in today's job market.

Through a grant supported by the Women's Fund, NDCC was able to expand the hours of its Career Placement Specialist to full-time, to provide assistance to program graduates in their job search. At it's May 9 "Keyholder Event" the Center's program — entitled "Bridging the Digital and Professional Divide" was featured in a video segment before the capacity audience at the Ohio Theatre..

The number of individuals ages 50 and older, needing and/or desiring to return to work, is a growing population. The majority of these mature job seekers are women (women outlive men), who are single and poor. Many worked at low-paying jobs without retirement benefits or with limited benefits, since their pay was much less than their male counterparts, and they often took time away from work to raise children. Seasoned workers bring a variety of assets to a job, including reliability, a sense of commitment, a strong work ethic, and loyalty.

A major goal of this NDCC program is to not only prepare mature workers to return to work, but to create awareness among employers about the benefits they can offer to an organization. Visit the Center's website for more information on this program.

Danter Receives Charles B. Jenkins Award

On May 21, Linda Danter, Executive Director of New Directions Career Center, was the honored individual recipient of the Charles B. Jenkins Award. The annual award, given by Employment for Seniors (EFS) was presented to Danter by Mr. Jenkins (a former CEO of EFS), for her work in promoting employment of individuals over the age of 55.

In recognizing Danter, Jenkins cited her work in starting a program for the “seasoned worker” that focuses on computer literacy and mastering communication skills necessary in today’s workplace. Danter thanked Jenkins and the awards selection committee for this honor and for their support and partnership with New Directions Career Center.

Funding News

Several recent grants will help the Center continue to deliver services to an increasing number of job seekers in Central Ohio. Recognition and thanks are extended to the following funders for their support:

- $5,000 grant from Huntington Bank will support the Center’s financial literacy workshops and programming for core programs.
- $1,500 grant from U.S. Bank will support financial literacy programming.
- $7,000 grant from the Edmond J. Gould Trust Fund, distributed by The Catholic Foundation. The grant will supplement the needs in the Center’s core programs for those served from the near West-Side of Columbus. Dr. Gould was a psychiatrist who served our community for many years. His planned gift to the Center, was made by working with The Catholic Foundation — the planned-giving partner of the Diocese. By working with donors throughout the Diocese, the Catholic Foundation helps them develop giving plans to benefit their chosen entities. The Center is proud that the value of our work is being acknowledged and supported in perpetuity through Dr. Gould’s kind and generous gift. If you would like more information on contributing to existing funds that support our organization, or would like to work on a planned gift of your own through The Catholic Foundation, please contact Scott Hartman or Amy Parker at 614-443-8893 or www.catholicfoundation.org
- $5,000 grant from Greencrest Living Hope Foundation will support scholarships for women to participate in the Center’s New Direction Program. Scholarship funds are used to underwrite tuition costs, as well as to provide child care and transportation assistance so women may participate in this class.

NDCC Event Will Feature Author and Career Consultant

New Directions Career Center is proud to bring bestselling author and career development specialist Nancy Anderson to Columbus on Wednesday, October 20. The event, Work with Passion in Midlife and Beyond, is titled the same as her latest book. Both the presentation and the book are designed to transform how we think about ourselves and the work that we choose to do.

Anderson speaks as an expert — having guided thousands of individuals as they uncover their own personal purpose and professional passion. She’s a much sought after guest, speaking on radio programs as well as television shows such as Good Morning America on ABC and CNN. Newspapers and career building websites also consistently seek out this expert.

“Given the volatile economy, rising costs of living, and likelihood that safety nets like social security and savings may not cover expenses when you are older, it is imperative that you start now to find the work that engages your heart and soul,” Anderson writes in the introduction to her new book.

Mark your calendar and plan to join us for this provocative event, to be held at The Columbus Foundation. Check the Center’s website for future details.
